ISGN and Data-Vision Seamlessly Integrate Their Systems

Integration of market leaders' technologies results in a very comprehensive web portal suite and significantly streamlines lenders' operations

BENSALEM, PA — June 2, 2009 — ISGN Corporation, a leading global mortgage solutions company, providing an end-to-end spectrum of mortgage technology products, advisory services and platform-based knowledge process outsourcing, and Data-Vision, a leading pioneer in Internet lending technologies that enable mortgage leaders to quickly and affordably implement web portal and e-lending capabilities, announced today the seamless integration of their systems which enable customers to maximize the best of both companies' core strengths. As a result of these integrations, lenders now benefit from a comprehensive and fully interactive web portal suite to take online applications, qualify them, provide customers with status, and much more. The integrations also result in a highly secure electronic delivery platform for users of ISGN's BridgeLink Network.

Specifically, users of Diamond and MORVision, ISGN's loan origination systems, will benefit from seamless integration into Data-Vision's LoanQuoter[®] point of sale product, pricing and eligibility engine, as well as its RemoteDocs[®] electronic delivery platform. Used in tandem, LoanQuoter and RemoteDocs enable MORvision and Diamond customers to easily build a comprehensive online lending solution that better services the ever-growing online consumer segment. With this fully-integrated web portal suite, ISGN customers can take online loan applications, deliver instant decisioning, post up-to-date loan status information, and instantly and securely deliver important initial disclosures and closing documents. The online lending channel is fully interactive, includes live chat, and offers customized online advice to ISGN customers, which are vital to improving productivity and closing more loans.

Additionally, Data-Vision's RemoteDocs electronic delivery platform is also now fully integrated with ISGN's BridgeLink Network, an electronic platform that provides users of ISGN's Diamond and other loan origination systems with the easiest and most secure way to deliver critical lending documents electronically. The BridgeLink Network connects lender users to all necessary third-party providers of products and services such as credit reports, appraisals, tax and insurance outsourcing, and AVMs.

"The enhanced strategic partnership with ISGN and our in-depth understanding of ISGN's Diamond and MORvision platforms provides our mutual clients even greater value," says Data-Vision president Randy Schmidt. "The synergies between the two organizations will enable us to rapidly advance web portal and e-lending solutions within the financial services industry. We share in the unified goal of delivering seamless system integration to ISGN clients while streamlining the online lending and electronic delivery process to drive down costs."

“In today’s rapidly changing mortgage market, lenders are constantly looking for ways to streamline their operations while increasing productivity,” adds Reggie Swiney, president of mortgage products for ISGN. “Through these tight integrations, we’re empowering lenders to markedly increase staff efficiency, reduce costs and optimize their on-line lending channels.”
